Some engine numbers in the Opel/Vauxhall group start with "02" or "20", followed by six more digits. It's important to know that only those last six digits identify the engine number; the first two digits merely refer to the production plant. For example: engine numbers beginning with "02" are engines made in the Bochum production plant. The first engine ever manufactured there was labelled "02000001" - the "02" at the start identifying, as we've explained, the ...
